Pre-launch announcement

New additions to the 'Little People's Literacy Learning' modules for parents and carers

Dear friends of ALEA,

On International Literacy Day, 8 September 2018, ALEA will launch an additional nine modules as part of the Little People's Literacy Learning guide for parents and carers. The new modules complement the 18 modules that were released in 2018.

The new modules provide:

- guides for working parents, at-home parents of babies and toddlers, and at-home parents with 2 and 3 year-olds;
- guides to developing the language of mental maths, number, measurement, space and shape, and pattern;
- a guide to technology use.

Written by Anita Ayer, a retired early years teacher, and Professor Trevor Cairney OAM, the modules are open access and free of charge.

You will be able to access the modules by copying and pasting this link <https://www.alea.edu.au/publicresources/resources-for-parents-and-community/little-peoples-literacy-learning> into a web browser, or by scanning the QR code with your mobile phone.

We would be grateful for your active support in promoting these new resources, developed with funding from ALEA members in the ACT, Tasmania, South Australia, Queensland and the Northern Territory. Please share the modules widely.
